 * * The 40th Regt. formed part of the first contingent of nearly 3,000 men under Sir Samuel Auchmuty to arrive in South America for the purpose of re-inforcing the expedition already present and to release those held prisoner in Buenos Ayres. Arriving in Jan. 1807 and being too weak to attack Buenos Ayres, they decided to attack Monte Video instead.
 Extract from "The South Lancashire Regiment P.W.V.", by Colonel B. R. Mullaby: "On the 18th Jan. a landing was made at a point about 9 miles east of the town and preparations were begun for an assault on the fortress. On the 20th the enemy made a sally from their lines, advancing in two columns. While the enemy cavalry tried to turn the British left flank, the other column, consisting of infantry, attacked the left of our line and pressed its attack so hard that it drove in the advanced posts and Colonel Gore-Brown, who was in command of the left wing of the British force, ordered up 3 coys. of The 40th under Major Campbell to restore the situation. These columns charged the head of the enemy column with great elan, but the Spanish troops fought hard and there were severe casualties on both sides before the enemy were finally driven back, at the point of the bayonet, with a loss of 1,500 killed and wounded".

He first saw active service abroad in 1805, when he went with General Sir James Craig's expedition to the Mediterranean, and was in Sicily and fought against the French in the Calabrian campaign under General Sir John Stuart in 1806. In Egypt in 1807 he was present at the actions at Alexandria and Rosetta. Later in the same year, as Major in the 26th Regiment (Cameronians), he took part in the landing in Walcheren and in the capture of Flushing.

He joined the 18th Hussars as a Major in 1810, and was appointed to command the regiment in 1812 when they were sent to Portugal. There he was seriously wounded, but soon afterwards present at the successful cavalry affair at Morales, in support of the 10th Hussars. In 1815 he and his Regiment joined Wellington's Army in the Netherlands and took part in the actions of 16-17th June and in the Battle of Waterloo. At the Battle he led the regiment in Sir Hussey Vivian's brilliant charge; remaining in command during the Occupation of France and until the disbandment of the 18th Hussars in 1821.

He was promoted Major-General, 1838, and appointed to the General Staff, 1842. He ended his career with the rank of General (1855) as G.O.C. Western District and Lieutenant-Governor of Plymouth. [Created C.B. for his conduct at Waterloo, and K.C.B. shortly before his death in 1860].

N.B. The following extract refers to one of the many incidents during the Mutiny: "The 67th N.I. were considered of doubtful loyalty and were disbanded at Agra in 1857. Officers in front, the Regiment was paraded facing a British Regiment. A sudden word of command and the British soldiers broke ranks to reveal behind them a battery of field guns with British gunners standing at the ready, linestocks alight. In those seconds of appalled silence, the order '67th, Ground Arms' was heard. For a few awful moments the sepoys hesitated, then wavered in the face of the row of muzzles and quietly laid down their weapons. Some of their officers wept, others broke their swordblades across their knees".

- * * * The career of William Edwyn Evans (born 1818) has been extensively researched in an attempt to verify the unnamed Indian Mutiny medal (c) in this lot. Although these efforts were not conclusive, a great deal of interesting information has been uncovered, such as the following which refers to the Capture of Aden:
- In September, 1838, he (Evans) was placed in command of a small detachment of his corps, Bombay European Regiment, aboard Coote, to act, "as an escort to Captain Haines, Indian Navy, proceeding on a political mission to (take) Aden, a fortress of considerable strength on the shores of Southern Arabia". The following despatch, 25 January, 1839 by Commander Haines explains some of the 'Political' work performed: "... during the many skirmishes which have taken place between the boats of the Honourable Companies Sloop of War Coote and the shore, the crew of that vessel, assisted by Lieut. Evans of the Bombay European Regt., ... and (his) detachment have behaved with great gallantry in every instance ...".
- He served throughout the Crimean War in the Land Transport Corps, being awarded the Legion d'Honneur and Order of the Medjidje (5th class). The India Register shows that he was in India during the Mutiny but his presence at the Siege of Lucknow has not been confirmed. Research into the Indian Mutiny medal produced no sight of its authorisation and so whether these two extracts refer to William Edwyn Evans must also remain uncertain:
- The Indian Mutiny* (G. W. Forrest), Vol. III, p. 431 and 438. "Captain Evans of the Bombay Native Infantry was of much service in the Artillery Park at the evacuation of the Residency of Lucknow ...
- Also, I wish to record the excellent services rendered to the Artillery by Captain Evans of the Bombay Infantry, who commanded with great credit several guns in position in the entrenchment, and whose zeal and devotion were conspicuous" (Major Eyre to Colonel Napier. 8-1-1858).
- Cawnpore Massacre. 1857.* (J. W. Sheppard), p. 69, "Mrs. Evans, the wife of Major Evans, Bombay Native Infantry, was killed, along with her two children, by falling bricks displaced by round shot. My friend Major Evans had to endure the most intense solicitude for his beloved wife, while he was engaged in the defence of Lucknow". Captain Mowbray Thomson, Bengal Army, 53rd N.I.

* * CAPTAIN E. P. JONES, commanded the Natal Naval Brigade throughout the South African War and distinguished himself on many occasions. The following extract from the Navy List highlights the career of this officer and confirms the importance of this group of medals:

Lieut. of Carysfort during Egyptian war, 1882 (Egyptian Medal, Khedive's Bronze Star); also during the naval and military operations near Suakin, in the Eastern Soudan, 1884 (Suakin Clasp); Captain of Forte, South Africa, 1899, landed with the Natal Naval Brigade, and commanded it throughout the campaign (South Africa Medal, 1900); highly commended by General Buller in his despatches for the manner in which he fought his guns and silenced every one of the enemy's guns that could be located at Colenso on 15th December, 1899; also by the same distinguished officer for the very smart manner in which the heavy guns of the brigade were brought into action on Sunday, 10th June, 1900, when the troops concentrated on Klip River, at the junction with Gans Vlei stream.

From General Buller's despatch 19th June, 1900: "It was due to the energy and perseverance of officers and men, following the example set them by Captain Jones, that it was possible to place the naval guns on the 8th, and to get them forward in time to accompany the advance on the 10th. The excellent marksmanship of the Naval Brigade, and the skilful distribution of their fire, contributed materially to the successful result of the attack on Allemann's Nek, 11th June, 1900". He also says in his despatch (London Gazette, 8th February, 1901): "The assistance they (the Naval Brigade) have rendered to me has been invaluable; the spirit of their leader was reflected in the men, and at any time, day or night, they were always ready, and their work was excellent". * * D.C.M. awarded for the action at El Teb, 29 February, 1884. [Submitted to the Queen, 23 May, 1884].

Extract from General Sir Gerald Graham's despatch, 31st March: "The 1st York and Lancaster were commanded by Lieut.-Colonel W. Byam. This fine battalion of seasoned soldiers only landed on the evening of our march to Fort Baker on the 28th February. During the action on February 29th, in which they took a prominent share, being in the fighting line, the York and Lancaster gave me great satisfaction by their steadiness, and by the firmness with which they met and repulsed the charges of the enemy. When advancing on the first battery captured, Captain Littledale rushed in front of his company and had a hand-to-hand encounter with several of the enemy. He was knocked down, receiving a severe spear wound in the left shoulder, but was rescued by his men coming up. He then rose, but though bleeding profusely, continued to lead his company throughout the engagement. Major Dalgety, although injured by the fragments of shell at El Teb, continued to lead his men, and at Tamaai displayed the utmost gallantry in rallying his men, until severely wounded. Several other officers distinguished themselves at El Teb and especially at Tamaai. Among them was Quartermaster Mahony, who also attended to the supply of ammunition, and proved himself a very efficient officer."

In the despatch the following officers, non-commissioned officers and men were specially brought to notice, Lieut.-Colonel W. Byam, Major R. Dalgety, Captain H. C. T. Littledate, Surgeon-Major Green, Quartermaster F. H. Mahony, Colour-Sergeants Hayward and Wake, Sergeants Doyle, Howell and Webb, Lance-Sergeants Haycock and James, Corporals Baxter and Dossett, Privates Callanan, Edwards and Foy. Extracts from the Commander-in-Chief's covering letter and the Secretary of the Admiralty's reply concerning the sinking of Stockforce:
Admiral to Admiralty:
"This is one of the best examples of coolness, discipline, and good organisation that I have ever come across. Number one hold was a huge gash in a little ship, and yet everybody went to their stations as usual. None gave the ship away by a careless or stupid movement or action. When the smallness of the ship and the force of the explosion are considered, it is hard to understand how officers and men could have stood the shock so well."
Secretary of the Admiralty to Admiral:
"I am to acquaint you that their Lordships concur in your high regard of the coolness, discipline and good organisation in this action, and I am requested that an expression of their appreciation may be conveyed to all concerned. I am further to inform you that the King has been pleased to approve of the following honours to officers and men for their services on this occasion."

* * * London Gazette: 15 May, 1919.

"For most conspicuous bravery and devotion to duty near Keerselaere on 24th April, 1915, during the German attack on the Ypres salient. The enemy's attack broke in full force against the front and right flank of the battalion, the latter being exposed owing to a gap in the line. The advance was temporarily stayed by Capt. Bellew, who had sited his guns on the left of the right company. Reinforcements were sent forward but were surrounded and destroyed. With the enemy in strength less than 100 yards from him, with no further assistance in sight, and with his rear threatened, Capt. Bellew and Sergt. Peerless, each operating a gun, decided to stay where they were and fight it out. Sergt. Peerless was killed and Capt. Bellew was wounded and fell. Nevertheless he got up and maintained his fire till ammunition failed and the enemy rushed the position. Capt. Bellew then seized a rifle, smashed his machine gun, and, fighting to the last, was taken prisoner."

CAPTAIN E. D. BELLEW: Born at Malabar Hill, Bombay, India, 28 October, 1882. Educated in England and joined the 18th Royal Irish Regt. in May, 1901, retiring with the rank of Lieutenant. After his marriage in London, he emigrated to Canada where he became an engineer of harbour construction in the Canadian Civil Service. On the outbreak of war in 1914 he joined the Canadian Military Forces (being promoted Captain on 10 January, 1916), but after his capture near Keerselaere he spent the remainder of the war in various prison camps.

[Full service details and accounts of the Ypres action are published in the "V.C. & D.S.O.", Vol. 1, pages 324-325].

THE ORDERS AND MEDALS RESEARCH SOCIETY

This Society of some 700 members was started in 1942. The objects of the Society are to promote and foster a general interest in the study of orders, decorations and medals, and to assist members in their researches by the holding of regular meetings and the publication of such information in its Journal.

Monthly meetings are held on the last Saturday of every month at the Society's premises in 'E' block at the Duke of York's Headquarters, King's Road, Chelsea. The Society produces a handsome quarterly printed Journal of at least 48 pages an issue. The Society possesses the Guille Collection of ribbons of the World, has an increasing library on the hobby, and provides a pleasant opportunity for collectors to meet others interested in the subject of the hobby. Many members undertake research work which is published in the Journal, and also discussed informally at the monthly meetings.
